

Competitive

When it comes to medical machining, AlliedOne Industrial is the answer. AlliedOne offers CNC machining technology to service a wide range of industries. Our experience in manufacturing high-precision, complex-geometry machined parts and assemblies used in the aerospace industry aligns us to meet the needs of the medical industry.

Our objective is to partner with manufacturers of Pharmaceuticals, Medical Devices, and service organizations that maintain and/or re-condition/refurbish equipment for re-distribution.

Pharmaceutical & Medical Devices

AlliedOne Industrial specializes in the production of an array of precision metal parts. We offer the technology, expertise and quality of a reputable CNC metal parts manufacturer to meet the needs of organizations that produce Pharmaceuticals and Medical Devices on an industrial scale. The parts we manufacture can range from custom, intricate, single-part components to exceptionally large components. We recognize the highly regulated nature of the medical industry and we are committed to a high standard in quality, continuous improvement and customer focus.

“Quality is the path to our success”

Supporting Service Sectors

We can provide the necessary precision parts and support for organizations that recondition/refurbish used equipment and perform maintenance.

Custom Machined Components

AlliedOne can provide precision metal parts using our advanced CNC technology with high accuracy and exceptional surface finish. Our engineering service optimizes machining processes to achieve the throughput, quality and guaranteed cycle times to meet customer needs.

Quality

AlliedOne has a reputation for providing customers with high quality precision machined components. It is the policy of AlliedOne to deliver accurate products and services on time. Our focus is on quality and accuracy in every project and every component we manufacture, supported by a certified quality control system and state-of-the-art technology.
